ABOUT THE SESSION:

Now that you are teaching (or thinking of) a Media Production class and the students are geared up to create masterpieces, what do you do? This webinar will provide you with a semesters worth of projects and concepts to deliver to your students to ensure curricular objectives are met. When taken with "Media Production... Handpicked courses for a five credit option", this webinar will provide the end user with a complete class of material, tested, tried, and true. Projects and concepts covered include both intermediate and advanced levels.

ABOUT THE FACILITATOR:

Brice Unland is a Media Production and Social Studies teacher at the high school level. He has pioneered and created three separate CTS options in his district, Robotics, Claymation, and most recently Media Production. His focus is on making technology and its use meaningful and relevant to students. By exploring new and creative avenues in the CTS curriculum, he hopes more students will find their talent and pursue nontraditional careers.
